BISHOP NOW CIRCUIT JUDGE.

C. Orrick Bishop, recently named as judge of the St. Louis Circuit Court by Gov. Folk, took the oath of office in the office of the clerk of the Circuit court Wednesday morning and will at once take up his duties as judge of the new criminal division of the court.

For the present his court will hold sessions in the room set apart for the juvenile court, which meets in the City Hall once a week. No arrangements have been made for a permanent courtroom.

Nearly Everybody Has Constipation, Many Don't Know It.

Food Stops in the Bowels and Rots in the System. The Results.

Decay, poison and pollution, not only of every thing in you, but every mouthful you shall eat in the future until you get rid of constipation. Do you wonder why you have bad blood, bad breath, sores, pimples, yellow complexion, sour and diseased stomach, decayed lungs, bad liver, diseased kidneys, female troubles, typhoid fever, apoplexy, weakness, nervousness, rashes and general bad health, when every drop of your blood contains the germs of rotting food?

Get clean—rid your system of this foul mass that is undermining your health. Good health is within reach, if you will accept it.

A physic can't help you unless you know how to use it. You know this from experience. It paralyzes the bowels and increases the stings. Mull's Grape Tonic is not a physic, differs from anything else known. It takes the poison—strengthens the bowels—makes you naturally new, sweet and clean inside, same as a gentle soap bath makes you outside. After that wholesome food, fresh air and exercise will do the rest.

It is not too late to recover your health. Art today. One bottle of Mull's Grape Tonic does wonders—it is unlike anything else you have ever used. Two or three bottles may cure you without surgery—suppose it takes 6—your'd be thankful.

Spring is here. It's time to clean your house and turn up inside. Mull's Grape Tonic will give you a new, clean, fresh body. Your loss if you do not accept it.

PRESIDENT DENIES LT. MOHN'S APPEAL

Jefferson Barracks Cavalry Officer Loses Appeal to Have Finding of Court-Martial Reversed.

WILL BE STRIPPED OF RANK

Informal Methods of Gaining Hearing by Young Officer Made Case Famous in the Army.

Second Lieutenant Albert J. Mohn, Fourth United States Cavalry, stationed at Jefferson Barracks, is awaiting official confirmation of the news dispatches which announce President Roosevelt has approved the findings of the court-martial recently held at Jefferson Barracks, which declared Lieut. Mohn guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman. As soon as the order is received at the Barracks Lieut. Mohn will be stripped of his insignia of rank.

Although only 24 years of age Lieut. Mohn has created a stir which has been the talk in army circles throughout the country. He has charged that he was the victim of a conspiracy among several of his superior officers. On two occasions Lieut. Mohn had been court-martialed and both findings were against him. In each instance he had written letters to military authorities which were deemed by other officers as reflecting upon them.

In February, Lieut. Mohn was fined $300 and the loss of 30 days for a letter he had written commenting upon an argument which had arisen over a failure of a soldier to shoot at the range, for which Mohn was blamed. This letter was termed by Capt. Slocum to be "impertinent and untrue." Mohn demanded that Slocum be tried for this statement, but instead Mohn was tried and fined.

He appealed over the court-martial to the President, who ordered a court of inquiry to investigate Mohn's charges that he was the victim of a conspiracy. The court findings were for the dismissal of Mohn. The President's approval is reported in the news dispatches.

Lieut. Mohn was trooper in the regular cavalry and won his commission in competitive examination after service in the Philippines. He has charged that West Point officers were in league against him.

BROOKLYN HOSPITALS FILLED.

All but Two Institutions Reach Limit of Accommodations.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Pneumonia, grip, bronchitis and kindred ailments are so near epidemic in Brooklyn that the hospitals, like those of Manhattan, with two exceptions, have reached the limit of their bed accommodations. In some of the institutions patients are compelled to sleep on mattresses on the floor. Eighteen cases of meningitis are under treatment.

The conditions of the streets, particularly in the residential sections, following the recent thaw is asserted to be responsible for much of the illness.

Drank and Lost $10.
F. E. Anderson, proprietor of a second hand furniture store at South Seventh street, has asked the police to find a woman who dined with him at his store Tuesday evening. Anderson says the woman drank but half a glass of wine and he drank the rest of a bottle, including the remaining portion of her glass and went to sleep. When he awoke, $10 of the $3 he had in his pocket was gone. So was his guest.

RACE GAMBLERS TO OPERATE ON OCEAN

New York Poolroom Men Charter Steamship to Evade Law Against Bookmaking.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, March 22.—A sea-going poolroom is scheduled to leave the Battery at 12 o'clock noon tomorrow, to sail beyond the three-mile limit of federal jurisdiction.

A steamboat, the Mount Desert, has been rented by a syndicate of poolroom men and they declare that if the scheme is a success there will soon be a fleet of floating poolrooms off Sandy Hook. The opening of the eastern racing season, at Benning, Washington, D. C., will occur tomorrow and the poolroom men in the Mount Desert venture expect 500 betters aboard at the sailing hour.

Information will be furnished by telegraph a wireless station, and then transmitted by wireless to the Mount Desert.

District Attorney Jerome said: "The sea-going poolroom would be illegal. Between the federal authorities and my office the whole matter could be dealt with adequately."

ARRESTS BROTHER FOR THEFT.

James Miller of Paris, Ill., Says Valuable Horse Was Taken.

James E. Miller of Paris, Ill., suspected his brother, Roy Miller, of stealing a $175 horse from his stable. After tracing Roy to St. Louis he returned home and had himself appointed as special deputy sheriff. He reached St. Louis Tuesday and Detective Klein and Wilson accompanied him on his search.

They arrested Roy at 281 North Grand avenue Tuesday night as he returned to his boarding house from work. He denied the charges made by his brother, but agreed to return home for trial without requisition papers and they left for Paris at once.

James Miller says he gave Roy money to come to St. Louis and seek work, but the younger man had not left on the train he intended to take, but loitered about until after dark and then took the horse.

POOR COOKS MAKE DRUNKARDS OF MEN

Chicago Doctor Says Mustard and Patent Medicines Also Are Conducive to Drinking.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, March 22.—These things make drunkards, according to Dr. David Paulson of Hinsdale:

"Poor cooks, highly seasoned food, mustard on sandwiches, patent medicines that contain alcohol."

"The poor cook is in league with the saloon keeper," declared Dr. Paulson before a meeting of the Cook County Institute. "And the records will show that where a man returns to drink after he has been temporarily cured is because he has been driven to it by poor food, poorly cooked."

"Highly-seasoned food is another factor in making drunkards, and the young man who buys a ham sandwich and seasons it with mustard is laying the foundation for a drunkard's life."

"Thousands of young men buy their sandwiches and spread them over with mustard, and when they have finished eating it they want a drink. Poorly cooked and highly seasoned food creates a thirst that the town pump cannot satisfy."

THINK WOMAN IN VAULT ALIVE

Watchers See Apparent Signs of Life in Mrs. Susan Sulzer, Who "Dropped Dead."

CHICAGO, March 22.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Tell City, Ind., says Mrs. Susan Sulzer, who apparently dropped dead ten days ago and whose body was placed in the cemetery vault two days later, is believed to be alive.

A specialist from Cincinnati has been summoned and an investigation will be made. During the time that the body has been in the vault it has been watched closely and several times apparent signs of life have been detected.

DEALERS COMPLAIN OF WHEAT GRADING

Practice of Inspectors Regarding Coast Product Said to Injure St. Louis Market.

IS A CHEAPER QUALITY.

State Officers Deny Methods Enable Handlers to Mix It With Higher Grades.

The question of grading "red western" or "coast" wheat as "red winter wheat" is agitating grain dealers, millers and speculators in St. Louis and East St. Louis.

The grading is made by the state grain inspectors in the two cities and is opposed by certain interested members of the Merchants' Exchange, who contend that the grading is unfair to Missouri and Illinois farmers as well as to dealers and purchasers. They contend that it operates against the interests of St. Louis as a grain market.

O. J. Miller, chief deputy grain inspector in St. Louis, denies that there is any unfairness in the grading. He says that while Chicago has not been accepting this grading, it is expected to do so at once. He says the grading is both fair and scientific. The opponents of this scheme of grading allege that the red winter wheat, grown chiefly in Colorado, Idaho, Washington, Utah and other western states, is inferior to the softer variety grown in Missouri, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. It is contended that the classification of the two upon the same basis permits the purchase of the coast wheat at from 7 to 10 cents less a bushel, and the mixture of the cheaper variety with the more costly soft red of the central states. This, they say, permits large profit to handlers, but is an imposition upon purchasers who think they are buying the soft red winter wheat.

Spencer's Statement.

Corwin H. Spencer, one of the active opponents of this classification, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"I went into this matter of the red Russian wheat, known also as western or coast wheat, for the reason that I felt it was a gross injustice to many who had bought wheat in this market for May delivery, believing that they would receive a grade of No. 2 soft red winter wheat, such as they have been accustomed to receive."

"This Oregon or red Russian wheat was attracted to eastern markets by high prices. As far as my knowledge goes this particular grade was never brought into this market until this year."

"The commercial value of this wheat is much less than the soft red variety known as the 'contract grade' in this market, and is selling now and has been for the entire crop year at about 7 to 10 cents a bushel less than our native Missouri or Illinois wheat."

"I made a vigorous protest to the Warehouse Commissioners against classifying this wheat as of the contract grade, and at a meeting before the commissioners held in the Merchants' Exchange some three weeks ago the testimony offered by millers, receivers and shippers was almost unanimous against the admission of the red Russian wheat on contract on account of its inferior quality as compared to our native wheat."

"The commissioners, however, declined to change their ruling, and the matter was finally taken up by the Legislature and the following resolutions passed just before adjournment, directing the attorney general to make a complete investigation of the action of the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners and grain inspectors."

St. Louis Market Suffers.

"The very bad feature in connection with this matter is that the St. Louis market is practically the dumping ground for this particular grade of wheat."

"It requires no evidence to convince any one of the detriment of the present ruling to our market, when our May wheat is selling at about 10 cents less than Chicago May, 7 cents less than Minneapolis and 6 cents under Toledo May, when in former years we invariably sold at a large premium over these markets."

"Mr. Miller, speaking for the inspection department, denied that there was any injustice in the classification."

"We do not grade the red western or coast wheat as 'No. 2 red winter,' he said. 'There seems to be a misapprehension on that score. What we do is to grade it as 'red winter,' without fixing its number. The red western is good wheat, and recent chemical analyses have shown that it makes a stronger grade of flour than our own softer variety.'"

"We know nothing of the alleged mixture of the cheaper with the higher priced grade. Unless a special inspection is called for our inspection ends at the car. We know of no adulteration."

"It is our purpose to assist the St. Louis market in all legitimate ways, and we believe we are doing so in the classification we are now employing."

ATTORNEY-GENERAL IS TO CONSIDER EVIDENCE.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 22.—Attorney-General Hadley, when seen this morning reading the Russian wheat grading, said that he did not know of the resolution until this morning when a copy was presented to him by Judge Priest and Morton Jordan of St. Louis, who asked that he take the matter up and consider the evidence on which the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners made their ruling.

Mr. Hadley said he would take the matter up at his earliest convenience and see what further action could be taken.

GREAT REDUCTION ON GAS RANGES

FOR COOKING FOR LIGHTING FOR HEATING

"COSTS LESS THAN COAL"

Gigantic Preparations Made by the Laclede Gas Light Co. for This Year's Business.

160 Selling Agencies, extending from Baden to Carondelet and from Third Street to the City Limits on the West, have been established by the Gas Company to retail Gas Ranges direct to the public. 16,000 Ranges have been purchased to meet this Spring's demand. By buying in such enormous quantities we are able to supply this demand at much less cost to the public than individual dealers could possibly do it. As proof of this, we are this year selling gas ranges at $2.00 reduction from last year's prices, or $3.00 below the prices of the year before. We are doing all in our power to introduce this matchless 20th century fuel for cooking into every home—at the least possible cost to YOU.

Gas Ranges, 16-in. oven, $15.00; 18-in. oven, $17.00—payable $3.00 with order, balance $1.00 monthly with gas bill. $1.00 discount from these prices for cash with order. Right now is the time to buy.

SAVES POLICE AT MERCY OF RIOTERS

Big Sergeant Straughn, With Club, Beats Five Men Into Submission in Saloon.

HAD ATTACKED CAR CREW.

Two Policemen's Attempts to Quell Disturbance Met With Disaster to Bluecoats.

The scene of the rioting, concerning which a telephone message was sent to Night Chief of Police Gillespie at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, changed while Lieut. Schoppa was gathering up six patrolmen and a sergeant to answer the call.

John Dunnagan of 369 Rutger street, John Dooly of 115 South Twelfth street, John Cassidy of 1226 South Eighth street, Patrick Miles of 1036 South Eighth street, and William Hannon, in whose saloon the men were found at Sixth and LaSalle streets, were arrested. Charges of disturbing the peace and relating an officer were placed against them.

The trouble started on the Cass avenue car, when the four men first named demanded that Conductor Clinton Glassner of 333 Garfield avenue, let them off at the car in the middle of the block. On his persistent refusal they attacked him and Motorist Edward Jager of 208 Grove street went to Glassner's assistance and both were kicked and beaten.

While the crew were waiting for the police the four men started for Hannon's saloon and on the way met Lung Wah and Lung Sing, who run a laundry at 1297 South Seventh street, and amused themselves by attacking them. The Chinese were not much hurt.

When the party reached Hannon's saloon they made so much noise telling their troubles to Hannon that Policemen Rendell and Marshall were attracted and their attempts to quiet the crowd brought a general attack.

It was while the general riot was on in the saloon that the patrol wagon passed and Sergeant Straughn dropped off. All he could see of the policemen was Rendell's arm. Straughn stands six feet four inches and weighs 250 pounds and was carrying a riot club. Before the men in the saloon realized just what was happening he was using the club with such force they were willing to submit to arrest.

Enthusiastic Welcome.

NEW YORK, March 22.—The French Antarctic expedition, under Dr. Charcot, arrived in port Tuesday afternoon, cables the Buenos Ayres, Argentine, correspondent of the Herald. Members of the French associations, with flags and banners, a representative of the minister of marine and many officers of the Argentine navy met the party.

Dr. Charcot, replying to an address of welcome, said the dangers of an Antarctic expedition were not as great as he believed existed in the streets of Paris, with their automobiles, which were perhaps more dangerous than polar seas.

sion—Old Officials Are

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 22.—The governor has signed a bill which places Houston in the hands of a commission, legislating out of office all officials elected at the last general election, and giving all the municipal power to a commission of five men.

The head of this commission has full power of appointing and removing all officials, and the city government is to be operated like a bank or other private corporation.

The change of government to a commission had the support of nearly all the taxpayers and business interests, as opposed to the political element.

IN SOCIETY

Notices of social events intended for publication in the Sunday Post-Dispatch should reach the Post-Dispatch office not later than noon of the Friday preceding.

The large audiences at the Olympic and Century theaters Monday evening proves that the main amusement of society folk is the play during the Lenten season.

In the audience at the Century to see Mr. Hackett and his company of players were: Mr. and Mrs. Marion Lambert, front row parquet seats. Mrs. Lambert wore a gown of black and blue and lace.

Miss Leigh Whittemore was escorted by Albert Niedringhaus. Miss Whittemore was in white broadcloth and heavy lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Kenney had their usual Monday night seats in the parquet. Mrs. Kenney wore a princess gown of Irish lace and white broadcloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dickson had friends with them in the parquet. Miss Dickson was in white crepe.

The Hand That Wards Off Coughs, Colds, Grip And Restores Nervous, Dyspeptic Catarrh Wrecks.

COLD, COUGHS, GRIP

"During the recent Grip epidemic, claiming a million victims or more, the efficiency of Peruna in quickly relieving this malady and its after-effects has been the talk of the continent."—N. Y. Journal.

THE STRONG HAND OF PERUNA

CATARRH, DISEASES

PERUNA An Effective Cure.

Hon. Dan Cooper, U. S. Marshal for the Northern District of Alabama, writes as follows:

"Your remedy for catarrh and la grippe, Peruna, has done me so much good that I cannot speak too highly of it.

"I have used it for a short time and have improved rapidly from the first day. I was really much surprised at such a quick and effective cure."

For the After-Effects of La Grippe.

Captain K. Esward, Company B, 21st Michigan V. I., 39 Hermitage St., Grand Rapids, Mich., writes:

"Noting the effect Peruna had on several of my comrades, I made up my mind it would be good for me.

"I suffered for years from effects of the la grippe, which seemed to settle in my stomach and kidneys. Five bottles of Peruna made a new man of me."

Find a home with sickness and you will find it a home without Ligozone.

Yet the first bottle is free.

We who make Ligozone use it daily in our families to ward off germ attacks. And we serve it in every glass of drinking water to our 700 employees. We have proved that sickness rarely comes where Ligozone is used. And most troubles end quickly when the sick one begins to employ it. When you use it as we do, and as millions are doing, nine-tenths of your sickness—the little ills and the big ones—will be avoided.

Not Medicine.

The virtues of Ligozone are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas. No drugs, no alcohol—noting but gas enters into it. The process of making takes fourteen days, and requires immense apparatus. Then we get one cubic inch of Ligozone for each 1250 cubic inches of gas used. This process has, for more than twenty years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research.

The result is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. Yet it is not only harmless but remarkably helpful. The effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Every well person feels its instant benefit.

Ligozone—like an excess of oxygen—life to an animal but deadly to vegetable matter.

There lies the great value of Ligozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too.

Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. For that reason, medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease, while Ligozone is almost certain. We proved this fact for years, through physicians and hospitals, in thousands of the most difficult cases obtainable. Then we paid $100,000 for the American rights—the highest price ever paid for any discovery used in the cure of sickness.

Ligozone is now used by the sick of nine nations in the treatment of germ diseases. In millions of homes it has done, and is doing, what medicine cannot do.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Ligozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Makes Sick Women Well

For more than a third of a century Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has enjoyed a high reputation as a remedy for chronic ailments incident to women, consequently there is little wonder that Dr. Pierce has brought a heavy damage suit against the Ladies' Home Journal because of the large financial loss suffered by him through the original libel.

These analyses, one and all, now show to us conclusively that not a single one of the ingredients mentioned by us in the analysis quoted—that is, either digitalis, opium or alcohol—was contained in the bottles analyzed. We then—the President of this Company and the writer—personally visited The R. V. Pierce Medical Company, at Buffalo, and were there convinced that the officers of the Company were absolutely truthful in their claim that not one of these injurious ingredients was contained in "Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription." Naturally, since the analysis we printed has been proved erroneous, the deductions made in connection with this preparation were unwarranted and unfounded.

Under these circumstances it is now perfectly plain to us that this magazine was unintentionally, but nevertheless absolutely misled in making the original statement, and we hereby, of our own volition, make this unqualified acknowledgment of our mistake to The R. V. Pierce Medical Company and to our readers.

JAPS TO BORROW $30,000,000 HERE

Syndicate Arranging to Bring Out $60,000,000 Loan and Wall Street Will Take Half.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, March 22.—Negotiations with a syndicate of bankers, headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., to bring out here and in London a new Japanese loan of $60,000,000 have been practically completed.
It is possible that about $15,000,000 may be placed in Berlin, and it is expected that at least $30,000,000 will be floated in Wall street. Several big insurance companies have intimated an intention to take all or the greater part offered.
It is probable that the entire $60,000,000 realized here will remain in this country to pay for supplies and munitions of war.

KREISLER-HOFFMANN CONCERT APRIL 10

Gifted Pair Will Come Back to the Odeon the Night of April 10.

The exceptionally fine patronage which every pretentious musical event is receiving in St. Louis this spring is causing an unusual activity in local music.
Immediately after the Tsaye concert at the Odeon Monday night an effort was made to secure the Belgian violinist for a return date when he comes back this way on his way home from the Pacific slope and Old Mexico. Ysaie had not planned to pass through St. Louis on the way home, and this, together with his demands in the matter of terms, prevented the making of a contract.
With Franz Von Vecsey the local impresario were more fortunate. He will play again at the Odeon the next Sunday afternoon.
Local music lovers will be delighted to know that the gifted pair of Kreisler and Hoffmann, both of whom have played here this season at the Choral Symphony concerts, have been engaged to return in a joint concert at the Odeon April 10.

Odeon Stock Troupe in "The Banker's Daughter."

The Odeon Stock Co. produced "The Banker's Daughter," by Bronson Howard, last night. The Odeon company has become so well established that its Tuesday night openings are never without an audience, which is so regular in its attendance that they deserve to be termed first nighters.
The Odeon stock venture was the real theatrical adventure of this season in St. Louis, and the successful outcome is the season's big surprise in the local theatrical world. Not even the most optimistic of the local play people could see anything but storms ahead of the enterprise at the Odeon, but the management persisted, even after it had lost considerable money, and now the Odeon troupe is netting a handsome profit every week. By next season, without having cost its producer anything this season, it will have established a clientele and will make money.
The cast in "The Banker's Daughter" brings into prominence two of the newer members of the troupe—Hugh B. Koch and Arthur Garrel. Mr. Koch is cast as the banker and Mr. Garrel as a Frenchman. The production is one of the best which Stage Manager Sullivan has made, the scene in the third act, showing the American embassy at Paris, being particularly pleasing. When it is remembered that the Odeon company is giving two performances daily and that it is never without a full house, its popularity in the community may be realized.

Faversham in His New Pinerio Play Next Week.

William Faversham is one of our most finished and popular players, and in "Letty" he is said to have a part which will serve to recall the days when he was one of the strong favorites with the Empire Theater company with Viola Allen, Miss Julia Opp and Miss Carlotta Nilson have important parts in the play. Faversham, who is a favorite here, has one of the important places—one that shows her to as good advantage as did Calypso in the impressive "Ulysses."
Fitz Williams, member of the Frohman forces, who has been kept in the East most of the time, is in the cast. Mr. Frohman went to London for three of the male players, and came home with Arthur Playfair, Tom Terris and Ivo Dawson, who have reputations in London and the provinces. Katherine Florence, Frank Goldsmith, Harry Redding, Wallace Wildecorn, Henri de Barry, Albert Cowles, John C. Tremayne, Josephine Mack and Margaret Taylor are in the company. The play is by Pinerio, author of "Iris" and other dramas, and has never been here. The Faversham engagement begins at the Olympic Theater next Monday night, the "Letty" beginning tomorrow.

A feature of "The Girl and the Bandit," which the Frank L. Perley Opera Co. will produce at the Century next Sunday night, is the climbing scene in the first act, in which eight young women descend from the balcony of an old Italian palace to meet their lovers who are a number of Italian noblemen.

The girls are students in the seminary, and are the daughters of American millionaires sent there to be under the care of Principessa di Villanova, who is the purchase of a husband and title by their wealthy parents. They make a claim to the engagement to meet the young noblemen, and go with them to the carnival, taking place in the city that evening.

As they have been locked in by the carnival, the girls are forced to make use of the rose trellis, which age has allowed to grow to the balcony of the palace. The young ladies perform the feat with skill and facility. They were trained to it by Frank Smith, who staged the opera. He was trained at West Point, and there learned, among many other things, the art of wall-climbing.
The piece is said to be one of the jolliest of the season. It had a long and prettiest of this winter. The Century seat sale begins tomorrow.

"A Chinese Honeymoon," which seems never to grow old in St. Louis, is a play that matter will return to the new Garrick Theater next Monday night for a week. The company will be the same that pleased the patrons of the Garrick some weeks ago. The chief comedy role of F-F is in the hands of Georgia Bryton, a frisky little lady who made many a fine laugh at the Garrick when she was there. John L. Kearney will be Mr. Pineapple. Miss Regina McAvoy will be Mrs. Pineapple. Others in the company will be George Broderick, as the Admiral; Albert Froom, as the Emperor; Joseph E. Miller, as the Lord High Chamberlain; and Mabel Baker, as the official mother-in-law. These people gave a good performance of this amusing and diverting musical comedy when they were here in February, and they will be welcomed back. The seat sale for the engagement will begin at the Garrick tomorrow.
Ralph Stuart's engagement at the Garrick in "By Right of Sword" will not end until next Sunday night.

A musical comedy, book by Willard Holcomb and music by Max Hoffman, entitled, "Me, Him and the Hat," will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House next week, commencing Sunday matinee, and giving the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. The organization is owned by Hurtig and Seamon, who have been enjoying quite a run at Chicago. Three grotesque comedians, Bickel Watson and Wrothe, supply the fun, and the dainty work is in the hands of a handsome prima donna, Miss Helen Spencer. The chorus embraces some 50 voices.

The local entertainers are affording the patrons of Havlin's much merriment, and given, many amateurs having been engaged to take part in specialties. In addition to the other local favorites are the regular performance of "The Stain of Guilt." Among the local entertainers take part another night are Joseph Holweg, Arnold Carter, the Gallagher children,

POST-DISPATCH'S EDITORIAL PAGE AND DAILY

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Founded by JOSEPH POLITZER. Published by THE POLITZER PUBLISHING CO., 210-212 N. BROADWAY

It is difficult to make a garbage odor in De Soto a political issue in St. Louis.

Speaking of the march of improvement, the March building permits are making a great showing.

The story that Oyama and Oku are Irishmen, whose names should read "O'Yama" and "O'Keogh," does very well for the month of St. Patrick.

THE BOND QUESTION.

Every voter should carefully consider the arguments in favor of the $9,000,000 bond issue presented by the representatives of business men's organizations in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch. The statement is short and clear. It is comprehensible to all readers.

The vital point of the bond question is the immediate necessity of the improvements for which the money is to be expended. Upon this point, so far as the elementary institutions are concerned, there can be but one opinion among intelligent citizens. For a decade the conditions of the City Hospital, Poorhouse and Insane Asylum have been a disgrace and a reproach to St. Louis. Nearly every grand jury has emphasized this fact. The Four Courts building is a menace to health and life. The Courthouse is inadequate for the increasing needs of the city. The sewer system must be perfected as a sanitary measure.

Of the $9,000,000 to be raised by the bond issue $6,500,000 will be devoted to these necessary purposes. If the cost of these improvements were to be provided for by special taxation the buildings would be greatly delayed, necessitating a large outlay for repairs and heavy special taxes.

The remaining $2,500,000 is for bridges, viaducts and parks on King's highway, which would thus be converted into a park-connecting boulevard. This would add to the attractiveness of the city. The money would be well invested. If we are to realize our dream of a beautiful city with abundant parks and boulevards we must make a beginning. It is for the voters to decide whether this is a wise beginning.

A city should have adequate and beautiful public buildings. It should have parks and good roadways. It is impossible to provide these things without paying for them. It is only a question of how to raise the money without overburdening taxpayers and how to expend it most economically and efficiently. Considering the present needs of the city and the distribution of the burden, the bond issue meets the requirements better than any other method suggested.

The bond question is not a political issue. It is a business proposition which ought to be settled upon its merits. The only bearing it has upon the local political contest is that the probable expenditure of this large sum by the next municipal administration should prompt citizens to exercise the greatest care in selecting their municipal officers.

With a Republican chairman who doesn't like Fairbanks, the Vice-President may have to do something to popularize himself for 1908; but he is not a famous dancer, and he is not much of a hunter.

THE RETREAT OF THE "AGE LINE."

On a scientific basis Dr. H. W. Wiley, the government's chief chemist, shows how man may expect a constant gain in the number of his active years, thus confounding Dr. Osler. Dr. Wiley finds that this generation has expanded in longevity from a third of a century into more than forty years. This agrees with the insurance records, which, beginning as far back as 1880, show a constant lowering of the general death rate.

Improved practices in medicine and surgery, tenement and hospital reform and a better general regard for healthful outdoor pursuits—all these help to lengthen human life.

Which is the more reasonable: To assume that the added years are all waste, or to believe that even as we live longer, so must we be longer fit for the activities that make life worth living.

Our warships are received in Havana with cheers and blessings for the American friends of the island. Isn't that better than having them greeted with muttered curses in an alien dependency held at great and unrequited cost by the sword?

O, MOST MERCIFUL JUDGE.

"A Daniel come to judgment—yes, a Daniel!" This time it is Judge Daniel Taylor of Division No. 2 of the Circuit Court of St. Louis.

Eleven days of actual married life—even though preceded by four days of acquaintance and a year's correspondence—does not furnish a woman sufficient opportunity to estimate the character of her husband, nor does the fact that said husband was under the influence of liquor nine days out of the eleven constitute an action for divorce, according to this merciful judge. Particularly is this true when, in a penitent letter, the husband sets up the plea to his far-distant spouse that he was only celebrating his happiness, newly acquired after a delay of many years, and that being continuously in a state of rum was not his natural condition or inclination, and further, that he desired her to return and remain as his true and lawful wife.

If one jag meant divorce, says Judge Taylor, in effect, what proportion of married men would go unwhipped of justice, and how many wives now reasonably happy, would see the ruins of their homes tumbling down about their heads?

Nay, nay! If marriage is so sweet a thing to a man as to require nine days for the celebration, let him celebrate, whatever the chosen method be, and let the queen of his heart contain her soul in patience until the joyous bridegroom shall have regained his equilibrium and come to a proper realization of the joys in store for him.

Kuropatkin, by accepting command under his successor is magnanimous as well as brave.

NEWSPAPERS IN THE SCHOOLS.

Supt. Burton of Green Bay, Wis., has introduced the daily newspaper as a basis for a course of study in the High School at that place.

One day's issue of the Post-Dispatch would supply excellent material for such a course. In Tuesday's Post-Dispatch, for example, the pupils could read the following instructive articles: On the trouble with Venezuela; the total debts due by that country to foreign capitalists; and the stand taken by the United States regarding their collection.

On the action being taken by the federal courts and the independent packers against the Beef Trust.

On the peculiar condition of street railways in Chicago, the city having annulled the charters and the cars continuing to run without any legal standing.

On the development of the war between Russia and Japan. On the return of the Igorrotes to their native land, and the odd things they said about St. Louis.

On the violinist Ysaye and his wonderful talent.

The article on the editorial page about Tibet.

The article on the $9,000,000 bond issue and what it means to St. Louis.

These and other articles could be utilized by the teacher to bring before the pupils a broad bird's-eye view of the current events of the world. Nothing in the day's educational course would be of greater value in enlarging the mind and laying the foundation for good citizenship.

The right kind of a governor and an improved Legislature are a great help to any state.

JAPAN AND THE PHILIPPINES.

Congressman Hull repeats his frantic warning that Japan wants to grab the Philippines. No such luck! The Japanese are not looking for additional trouble and they know very well that the European naval powers would object to their southward expansion. But Mr. Hull, as chairman of the House military committee, probably thinks any war "scare" good enough to get money for war expenses.

MRS. LINDELL'S BROOCH

THE STORY OF A LOST FORTUNE

BY IVAN WHIN.

AUTHOR OF "THE TALKING CLOCK," "BRADLEY," "THE SOCIALIST,"

COMPLETE IN SEVEN CHAPTERS

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
The brooch was made by a King Louis of France and presented by him to a Madame Lindell. It was brought to this country by a Madame Lindell, now living in the latter part of the eighteenth century, and descended thereafter to the wife of the successful leader of the family. In 1800 it was mysteriously lost and an interesting search for it followed. It was discovered by the late Mrs. Lindell, who appeared from the front of Mrs. Lindell's gown. Francis Lindell had received the brooch from his mother, who had refused to bestow it upon her mother's mother for a reason connected with the loss of the brooch. He was very proud of it, and knew that it was worth $100,000 at the least. When it disappeared he became estranged from his wife, who, after four years abroad, returned to take up philanthropic work in St. Louis. She was a French girl, and her father was a Frenchman. She was very beautiful and became interested in her father's work. She was a French girl, and her father was a Frenchman. She was very beautiful and became interested in her father's work.

CHAPTER III.

Mr. Lindell's Discovery.

DENNY had no intention of complicating her future relations with Weing by permitting him to take her to his mother when she was sent out by her father. The Schultz girls, Mary and Emma, orphans who maintained the house in which their parents died by clerking in Broadway, would take her in. And right glad they were to have her, although their indignation over her father's treatment of her was expressed at wearying length and with a maddening length of question.

Life soon settled down to a routine, even after the most exciting upheavals. In a week Denny was thoroughly at home with the Schultz girls and they looked upon her as a permanent member of their family. She had formerly turned over her wages to her mother and received from her what change she needed for small personal expenses. Mrs. Armstrong's skill with the needle was great and her taste supplemented economical purchases, enabling Denny to always appear as well clothed as any of her friends. It now became necessary for Denny to manage her own finances, as living away from home she must pay board, and the family purse lacked the portion she had paid into it. If Robert Armstrong would work steadily there would be no lack of money for the support of himself and wife, but his periods of irregularity had increased, and Denny felt that she would find it necessary to help her mother.

Mrs. Armstrong went to the store once or twice a week to see Denny, who could not go to the home safely after working hours.

"What have you done with the brooch?" she asked on one occasion.

"Locked it up in my trunk."

"Keep it very carefully, dear. Your father believes it is very valuable, and some day it may prove so."

"How like it is to the one Mrs. Lindell lost," said Denny. "I was looking at it."

last night. You remember she said hers had some French words on the back and we said there were none on my brooch. Well, there are, but they are very faint—almost worn off.

"What are the words?"

"I cannot make out exactly but I think a part of it is 'Je vous adore'."

"Some day you might show it to Mrs. Lindell, but be very careful. Your father has not missed it. When he does there will be a storm."

"But it belongs to me, doesn't it?"

"Yes, my father left it to you, his only grandchild. It was all he had to give you, but I feel sure it is very valuable."

"Dear old grandfather, I remember the first time he showed me the brooch. I was 10 or maybe 11 years old. I was dressed for a party—all in white, with just a little baby blue ribbon woven into the lace of my yoke. Grandpa called me into his room and pinned the brooch on my breast. I wanted to run out and show you but he would not let me and when he took the brooch away I almost cried. He said: 'You shall have it when you grow up and keep it always.' Father says I can't have it till I'm 21, but I've got it and I'll be of age in four months."

"I hope he will not look for it until you are of age."

"He'll not find it."

"But he'll make trouble. Already he's talking of demanding your wages from Mr. Hammerschlag."

"Louis won't pay him."

"He may have to under the law."

"If the law gives him my wages after he has driven me from home I'll stop work. I won't go near the store till I'm of age. I keep house for Mary and Emma for my bare board. He can't collect that, can he?"

Armstrong did make the demand of Hammerschlag and was refused with laughter. He brought suit in a justice's court. At the trial Denny told her story of having been driven from home and Weing corroborated her. Armstrong denied that he had ordered her to leave his house, and claimed that she had gone away voluntarily, "with her lover," he concluded scornfully.

The justice insisted on examining Mrs. Armstrong, who had not been called by either side. She went bravely to the witness chair and told the same story Denny and Weing had told.

Armstrong's face darkened when she began her story. When she told the words "I was waiting the disposition of some dispossession," he had brought in that court which would be taken up as soon as Armstrong vs. Hammerschlag was disposed of.

Judgment for the defendant," said the justice.

Armstrong sprang to his feet and would have given vent to his temper, but the iron grip of Lindell caught his elbow and a cold grey eye menaced him. He left the court muttering, ignored his wife and entered a nearby saloon.

Mrs. Armstrong smiled at Denny's fears that he would deal violently with her when he got home.

"You know, dear, however violently he talks he never struck me," she said.

"But, mother, he's so changed. Every month he seems gloomier and more dangerous and you know he has been drinking more than ever."

Her mother would not listen to fears, but went bravely to her home and waited for the man who had cast out his daughter and publicly insulted his wife.

He came with the dark and he did not seem drunk or angry, only sullen. While she prepared supper he sat silently rocking in her sewing chair. At her summons he went to the table and ate without words.

After supper he went into his bedroom. Presently he returned to the kitchen.

"Where's that brooch?" he asked.

"Yes, Denny's."

"She has it?"

"You gave it to her?"

"Yes. The woman was very calm and very unafraid."

"Did you tell her its history?" There was a malignant smile warping the corners of his mouth.

"I do not know it. Father left it to her. I suppose it was a family heirloom, although I never saw it until a short time before he died."

"It was a family heirloom, but not in his family," never could figure out how he stole it."

"You do not accuse my father of being a thief?"

"What else? How else would he get possession of Mrs. Lindell's brooch?"

"Of course it can't be the same."

"It is, though, and if it isn't brought back to me by your father, I'll tell the police where they will find it."

So saying, Armstrong marched out of the house, and was seen there no more that night.

Mrs. Armstrong did not stop to finish her supper dishes, but hurried to the Schultz house to see Denny and tell her the terrible story.

"If it is Mrs. Lindell's she shall have it," said Denny. "Let us go to her now."

They were very fortunate in reaching the Lindell house just as the lady was descending on her way to a function.

"One day when you were at our house you told of a brooch you had lost," said Denny. "When the greetings were over and they had been ushered into a cosy little reception room. 'I want to show you my brooch which was like the one you described, but father would not let me. I've brought it in to you now. Please look at it.' Mrs. Lindell started in amazement as she opened the leather case and disclosed the brooch."

"Why, it's mine," she said involuntarily. "The faces of mother and daughter paled. 'No, it isn't,' Mrs. Lindell said, looking more closely. The light of hope made bright the eyes that watched her. She examined the gorgeous jewel carefully and shook her head sadly as she gazed upon the worn back. From the inscription had almost disappeared. 'No, it is not mine,' she said after a while. 'It is so much like it that I could not describe this brooch without describing my own, yet I know that this is not mine. The stones seem dull, but they may need cleaning. May I show it to my husband?'"

He had been walking about the hall impatiently waiting, knowing that she had come down ready to go with him. When Mrs. Armstrong nodded assent she brought him in. He stared in amazement at them, and at him, remembering the justice court episode in which all had figured. "You must have lost before," asked Mrs. Lindell. A little bewildered by the strangeness of the looks that passed between them.

"Won't you present me?" her husband said coolly. She did so and told of their errand.

He took the brooch eagerly in spite of his wife's assurance that she had failed to identify it.

"After the first glance all eagerness went out of his face."

"The stones are paste," he said, and snapped the cover of the case.

Man the Beautiful.

Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gillman does us too much honor. Men, says Mrs. Gillman, are more beautiful than women. A London audience sat in silent amazement while she pointed out to them the elegances and perfections of the male and the deficiencies and incongruities of the female.

Woman is too short from the waist downward, she says; she dresses around with her too many heavy skirts. Her walk is a waddle; run she cannot; climb she cannot; men help her up and down by catching her elbow.

"This is an insult to any woman," says Mrs. Gillman, "unless she has a wooden leg."

In America, she said, statues made from measurements of typical young persons, both male and female, showed that the men more nearly approach physical perfection than the women.

Yet on the boulevards, at the matinee, in church, are to be seen feminine forms which are not (according to Mrs. Gillman's revelations) apparently undisciplined men have declared divine.

THE MAN WHO NEEDS REFORMING

Should a Woman Marry a "Wild" Youth?

BY IVAN WHIN.

THE correspondent does not sign her name, but she writes on thick blue paper in a modification of the vertical system and encloses her note in a large cream envelope. Applying Sherlock Holmes methods to these facts we may be reasonably sure of her identity. She is young and fanciful. She presents to me a problem that many women have considered and solved in many ways.

She is in love, "passionately," she says in the abandon of anonymous letter writing, with a man whose habits have gained the condemnation of her guardians. He is "wild," she says, but does not specify the sins of which he is habitually guilty. He has always been perfectly respectful to her and assures her continuously of his affection for her.

She asks me to advise her on the subject of marriage with this man.

If I say "You must not," and in the future when old maidenhood has settled pall-like on her, she meets him reformed—the happy husband of another—she will curse the name of Ivan Whin.

If I say: "Follow the dictates of your heart," and he goes on in evil ways, waiting for his substance and his own, beating and flouting her, she may tell the divorce court judge that Ivan Whin is responsible for the failure of her happiness.

It might be wiser to ignore the letter as I have been forced to neglect many others that have come to me during the weeks the Post-Dispatch has printed my novels; but the inclination to speak on this subject is strong.

Youth grows rank. Its earlier upshot is weed-like. It feeds on extravagance, on excess.

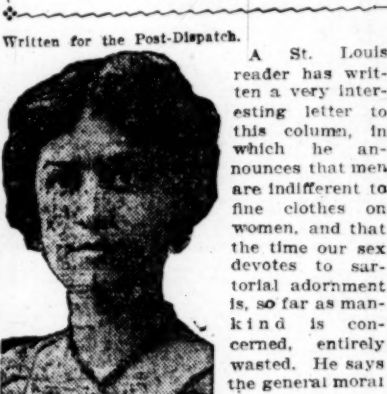

Youth loves noise and glare. It dances to rag-time, the faster the pace the greater the joy.

Wind sows wild oats, as youth wantonly wastes opportunities. Neither the wind nor the youth has thought of consequence.

MEN, AND WOMEN'S CLOTHES

By Nicola Greeley-Smith, Granddaughter of Horace Greeley.

A St. Louis reader has written a very interesting letter to this column, in which he announces that men are indifferent to fine clothes on women, and that the time our sex devotes to sartorial adornment is, so far as mankind is concerned, entirely wasted. He says the general moral is that, excepting dress to conceal defects, women spend money uselessly and to their own disadvantage in dress.

Now, this may be true of St. Louis—at least, I don't know that it is not so. But in New York, where women spend more money on clothes than anywhere else in the world, they may certainly so lace themselves with the thought that if wisely spent not one cent of it is wasted. For I have yet to meet a New Yorker who lacked appreciation of beautiful gowns, or who did not have a pretty fair idea of their cost.

It may be that the splendor and beauty of the theatrical costumes of the last ten years have educated him and made him more fastidious and more exacting in his tastes. But, whatever the cause, it is certainly a fact that he knows nearly as well as you do whether your gown was made on Fifth avenue or in Hester street, and pretty well what you paid for it. No amount of money spent on clothes is wasted, provided you have it to spend, and the result justifies the expenditure. At this season of the year it is as natural for the man to think of fine clothes as it is for the trees to show their promise of new leaves in the faint green that tints the lean brown arms they lift in gaunt petition to the sun.

There is probably not a woman in New York who does not devote the greater part of her leisure at the present time to planning her spring wardrobe.

Opinions are divided as to whether Lent was invented to gratify the ambition of the industrious hen or the busy dressmaker. But, however, this may be, both alike are reaping their reward in this penitential season. And the glad raiment now in process of construction will have a direct effect on many a lagging suiter. Notwithstanding man's alleged indifference to dress, no man is indifferent to women's clothes except when he has to pay for them. Then general moral is that, excepting dress to conceal defects, women spend money uselessly and to their own disadvantage in dress.

But, whatever the cause, it is certainly a fact that he knows nearly as well as you do whether your gown was made on Fifth avenue or in Hester street, and pretty well what you paid for it. No has not reaped consequences, so long as the blood is hot and the brain has little substance, one lives wildly, caring only for the glitter and clatter, the jingle and the gush.

Experience subdues. It teaches the necessity of reserving force, of choosing pleasures with regard to cost in time and energy. It dulls appreciation of folly and it enlarges respect for wisdom.

No true man or woman sighs overmuch remembering rank years or would live them again. We who recall much of our folly have deep sympathy with those who are still foolish. Days used to be so long and bright and nights seemed not to be made for sleep. The whole world was our friend. Duty was a futility, weariness only came with later years and doubt of friends was taught slowly.

Every one who passes through this later Eden must appear to some one or as "wild." The critic who has forgotten his own youth, or blurred its memory with too much sighing, cannot see that deeds in which he finds an enormity of sin are mere bubbles. Perhaps he only sees the impurities frothing to the surface leaving the liquor of character clear.

If the loved one is wild only in this youthful sense, if he has only the touch of folly that is natural to his years, give him time and he will outgrow it. Don't marry him in haste, wait a little, test him a little, see if there is not a strain of steadiness in his character and a capacity for wisdom in his brain.

If he is befuddled by the cheap dissipation that is glossed by the word Bohemianism wait till he sees its disgusting emptiness; till he tires of hucks and longs for the decencies of life.

If he has passed the flushed years of youth and is still unsettled, still refuses to profit by experience, still follows the lights that flash and seeks the things that glitter, beware of him. Don't marry him to reform him. Character is made by the individual and not by exterior circumstances. The most loving and wisest work an never found happiness in the company of a man who could not reform and elevate himself, but needed her influence to keep him reasonably near to the path of decency.

The man who needs reforming by influences outside himself is past reformation. If he has no love for truth she will never instill it into his nature; if he has no strength of will, all her strength will be wasted, if he has no high ideals he will never live within calling distance of her own.

The man who needs reforming is worthless. The woman who thinks she loves such an one should wait a few years and she will learn that he lacks everything that should inspire love. She will find that he was one of the follies of her youth.

"I must say I'm surprised at our minister," said Deacon Longface. "He sees all Christians should take pattern of the bee as a model of industry."

"Wat's the matter o' thet?" demanded his wife.

"Why, he be works on the Sabbath same's any other day."—Catholic Standard and Times.
